

CRJ-408 Police and Technology Assignment: Privacy and Stalking

Using your facebook account or some other means, your are to determine how many of your facebook friends have put sensitive information on their profiles.

Specifically, have any of your friends put information on their site that would make it easy for people to stalk them or commit another crime (identity theft). This does not have to be an exhaustive search of all your friends pages, but you should look until you find a few things that are problematic. Specific things to look for:

Address

Phone numbers

Sensitive personal information (work or class schedule)

Updates about their location

Other information that you deem useful in stalking/cybercrime

Once you have found this information, the second part of the assignment is to write a brief summary about how this information could be used against your friend as well as how you would advise them to be smarter about their information.
